Sara,

Thank you — this is exactly the clear, on-the-record answer we asked for, and you gave it the same morning. We're grateful.

We have published your position on our public scorecard at DeFlockILM.org/where-they-stand, alongside the other officials and candidates who have answered, quoting you directly: "100% against all forms of Flock and mass surveillance." We're also acknowledging your response publicly today, next to two others we received — because the whole point is that we ask everyone the same question, regardless of party, and report the answers as they arrive.

Your point about the money is one more people should hear: this is a taxpayer expense as much as a civil-liberties one, and a county gets to decide whose technology it funds.

Thank you for answering, and for your work on the Brunswick petition. If it would ever help to have our records or the Cape Fear data for a public comment or a board presentation, we're glad to share.

Respectfully,

~Mark

On a local level, misuse of the system, as well as people being wrongfully detained, pulled over, etc. are troubling and should raise concerns among tax payers. On a larger scale, we need to thoughtfully and ethically spend tax dollars and as a county, we need to make ethical choices who we support financially ultimately - I do not believe a dime of tax payer dollars should line the pockets of someone like Peter Thiel.
